Sanctions Against Serbia and Montenegro

Belgrade Plays Up Refugee Crisis for Sanctions Relief

The FRY is asking that the Security Council lift all sanctions so that Belgrade can deal with the flood of Krajina Serb refugees who have fled from Croatia,   Failing Security Council action to lift all sanctions, Belgrade requested that the Sanctions Committee expedite clearance procedures for humanitarian goods, free up FRY assets for the purchase of relief supplies, and allow some exports to raise hard currency to purchase additional humanitarian supplies.  UNHCR and other international aid organizations believe additional relief is on the way and the refugee situation is not yet critical. Moscow has announced a substantial aid delivery effort by air into Serbia on 12 August, followed by truck and rail shipments. Moscow also has publicly called for lifting sanctions. There is little prospect that the UN Security Council will lift sanctions to ease relief operations, but it probably will expedite approvals for cargo flights into the FRY. It may be difficult to detect embargoed goods hidden in large relief shipments.

This memorandum was prepared by the Directorate of Intelligence and is published Monday through Friday.
